“Intranets.com has been invaluable to Vector Space as a project planning, management and resource tool, and has allowed us to engage in a wide range of groupware services without the need for an expensive Microsoft Exchange or Lotus Notes infrastructure,” says Mark Albert, Vice President of Vector Space, Inc. - a New York consulting firm that delivers decision support systems to private- and public-sector organizations.

“Vector Space’s comprehensive suite of services to decision makers, IT organizations and technology companies centers on collaborative dimensionally-based analytical systems that solve business problems, enhance understanding and foster accurate and timely decision-making,” Albert says.

“For 4 or 5 years now, we’ve been using Intranets.com internally as groupware - the way a larger firm might use Lotus Notes. Because we’re a small firm, we don’t want to take on the administration of something like Lotus Notes. We have Microsoft Exchange, but we don’t want to use it, because it’s a lot of work to administer. It’s a lot easier to use Intranets.com.”

“We use the Intranets.com Document Manager facility very heavily -- basically in lieu of an FTP site. We have an FTP site, but again, Intranets.com is a little more convenient, a little easier to use, so we use Intranets.com the way another company might use an FTP site.”

“We have a library of important documents on Intranets.com that we are constantly using when we are at client sites, and we also use Intranets.com to communicate among ourselves when we are at client sites.”

“We use the Intranets.com Online Calendar, which is always great. Being able to access our calendars online is hugely helpful. We also use the Intranets.com Contact Directories and the Tasks Manager. And, we synchronize our desktops and PDAs and Intranets.com, so we keep everything up-to-date.”

“We haven’t used the Intranets.com Web and Phone conferencing service yet, but it’s great to have it available, so that should we end up needing it, we could take advantage of it relatively easily. I had looked into WebEx a while ago, and it’s very expensive and doesn’t make sense for a firm our size.”

“What Intranets.com offers is exactly right for us. We can get all the functionality we need, affordably and conveniently with Intranets.com.”
